The Joys of Camping

Camping has been a popular choice for holiday accommodation for a long time, but it seems that now its popularity is on the increase. Kate Reilly speaks to five dedicated campers and finds out why they prefer to pitch their tents or park their camper vans rather than stay in hotels.

A Ben: a teacher

For Ben the most important thing is to find a cheap and affordable option during the busy school holidays. "Because I have to go away during the peak season when all schools are off it's often difficult to find cheap deals or holiday flats for rent", he explains. In addition to this he enjoys the flexibility camping offers. "I'm not that good at planning ahead and like to be spontaneous with my travel plans. The fact that it's not usually necessary to pre-book to stay at a campsite suits me very well. I also like that I can go away to more exotic and remote places and get away from the students I spend all year in the classroom with."

D Eli and Catriona: doctor and medical researcher

Eli and Catriona explain why camping is the perfect holiday for families. "We used to go camping when we were much younger, before we had children and loved it but now we have the boys, it makes even more sense. There are so many child-friendly campsites with swimming pools and special activities for kids. It's so nice for them to have lots of space to run around in and other children to play with. It also means we have time to ourselves to really relax. We've actually been to the same campsite for two years in a row now as we all had such a good time there the first year. The boys are still in touch with the friends they made there so we might well go back again this year."

B Matt: IT engineer

Matt likes to spend his holiday seeing lots of different places. "I'm a restless person so when I go away on holiday I don't like to be tied down to one place; camping means you can stay for two nights in one place then pack up the tent, jump in the car and stay somewhere else for the next night or two and so on with no need to book ahead. It's a great way to see lots of different places in a short period of time." He also points out that, "You obviously need a car to really be able to make the most of your time and make sure you have a good map and an up-to-date camping guide with clear directions to help you find the sites. Campsites are often not well signposted and there is nothing more frustrating than driving around for hours looking for a campsite when you'd rather be relaxing."

E Melissa and Stefano: salon manager and marketing director

For Melissa and Stefano it's the friendly atmosphere that means they keep going back to campsites year after year. "We've travelled around the whole of Europe in our camper van and every year we meet so many interesting people and make friends with travellers from all over the world. Everyone is so helpful when you stay on a campsite. If you need to borrow something like matches your neighbours will always help you out. One year we got the back wheels of the camper van stuck in the sand and it took ten of our new neighbours to help push it out. Everyone came rushing over as soon as they saw there was a problem and most of us didn't even speak the same language. It was a wonderful feeling: you don't get that in hotels."

C Cathy: finance director

Cathy is looking for a contrast to her stressful working life when she goes on holiday. She says, "I love being outside and I enjoy the freedom of camping offers. I spend all day in the office when I'm at work and have to be very organized to meet tight deadlines, so when I'm on holiday I like to be in the fresh air and be able to do exactly what I want when I want. Camping is perfect for that. Of course there are some rules you have to respect like you aren't allowed to make noise after 11 or 12 at night but I like that. I love going to sleep listening to the insects in the trees or the waves on the beach."

Read the part of the email, which you have recently received from an English-speaking friend, Pam, who is thinking of taking up a new past time.

Do you remember how creative we were as children? We were always telling each other about imaginary travels or creating hand-made monsters out of all kinds of material.

Now, I really want to take up a creative hobby again. There are two very different areas I'm currently exploring: making music and painting. What would you say are the advantages of each of them? What are the trick things about them? Which would you recommend?

Should I start this new hobby on my own or join a club?

What about you? Are you the creative type? Which creative hobby would you choose if you didn't have one already, and if you have one, what is it?

I'm looking forward to hearing from you!

*Love,
Pam*
